Liberals Win Overwhelming Victory In Dominion Election

N. J. M. LOCKHART, NEW MEMBER FOR LINCOLN ELECTED ON MONDAY

Wins Constituency By Majority of 431 — A. E. Coombs, Liberal Candidate Makes Strong Run — Conservative Majority of Nearly 6,000 in 1930 Markedly Reduced — H. L. Craise, Reconstructionist And G. W. Pay, C.C.F. Candidate, Lose Deposits, Polling Light Vote.

On Monday the electors of Lincoln went to the polls in unusually large numbers, over two thirds of them recording their votes. 26,964 were cast of which the newly elected member Norman J. M. Lockhart, at present Mayor of St. Catharines, received 11,407 giving him the victory and the honor of representing the riding at Ottawa for the ensuing term. His principal opponent, A. E. Coombs, the Liberal candidate, was however, not far behind, securing the large total of 10,976, the former winning by a majority of 431 in a hard fought battle. The Reconstructionist candidate, Mr. Craise, secured 2,451 votes and the C.C.F. candidate, Mr. Pay, 1,230. The latter two candidates lose their deposits of $200 which go to the government.

The vote in the city of St. Catharines was the deciding factor in the election of Mr. Lockhart who received a total of 6,124 votes in the three city wards, against 4,969 cast for Mr. Coombs. Mr. Pay, the C.C.F. candidate, recorded more votes in St. Catharines, 789, than did Mr. Craise of the Reconstruction party, 660.

County totals showed that Mr. Coombs was the favorite outside the city. His total vote in the county was 6,005 and that of Mr. Lockhart 5,277. Mr. Craise captured 1,788 votes in the rural section and Mr. Pay 441.

In addition Returning Officer S. J. Wilson announces the receipt of 17 absentee votes, recorded outside the riding, all of which went to Mr. Coombs.

The returns from city and county were returned shortly before 9 o'clock and immediately victory was assured the brass and pipe bands of the city were out in full force and a Conservative parade was organized headed by the candidate-elect. It was a noisy cheering crowd that marched about the city.

Lockhart Speaks

In a brief address to the large crowd gathered in front of The Standard office in St. Catharines the newly elected member of parliament expressed his deep appreciation to his supporters and expressed the hope that all were as elated as himself.

"I look forward sincerely to better times and we will start on October 14th, 1935, to win the election four years hence," he said. "We have won a great victory and I desire to express my appreciation to my supporters, particularly to the ladies who exercised their franchise and held the good old county of Lincoln in the Conservative ranks."

The member elect expressed his best wishes to his opponents, stating that they had put up a good fight, that he hoped they would all be good friends and work together for the best interests of Lincoln and the Dominion of Canada.

Congratulates Winner

A. E. Coombs, speaking over the radio, congratulated the victor, declared that he had meant the kindly words he had spoken of Mr. Lockhart during the campaign and also expressed the hope that the results of the election would not mar the long friendship between himself and the member elect.

No Advance In Bread Prices Here

Mr. A. Jaryis, Grimsby baker, states that the price of bread made at his bakery will remain the same at least for the present in spite of the fact that in various Ontario centres, Hamilton included, prices on bread, that is the cheaper grades, have increased one and in some cases two cents per loaf. The ten cent loaf, however, remains the same. Increases in the price of wheat and flour were given as the cause of the advance.

Library Sleeper Fined On A Drunk Charge

In county police court last week William Campbell, Clinton Tp., was fined $17.75 on a charge of being drunk in a public place.

He went to the Grimsby public library to read on Monday. He dozed off to sleep and when closing time came police were called.

Damude Returned In Welland—Wins By Large Majority

In the greatest turnover in the history of the county of Welland, Arthur G. Damude carried the Liberal banner to victory by the largest majority ever recorded. With Fred M. Cairns, the Conservative standard bearer as his chief opponent, Mr. Damude rolled up a majority of 3,500, the figures being for Mr. Damude 17,124; Mr. Cairns 11,521. The other two candidates ran a poor third and fourth their totals being Thomas Daly, C.C.F., 3,789 and William E. Smith, Mayor of Fort Colborne, the Reconstructionist, 2,286.

Old Welland County was once again returned to the Liberal fold where the late Mr. W. M. German held sway for over thirty-five years.

Grits Gets 166 Seats—Tories 41—Other Parties Fail Dismally—Party Leaders Re-Elected.

Liberalism emerged victorious in Canada on Monday. Climaxing a succession of provincial victories, the federal party under Rt. Hon. Mackenzie King captured the treasury seats at Ottawa with the biggest majority recorded since Confederation.

Reconstructionists and the C.C.F., each making its initial bid for power federally, failed dismally. Neither party elected a man east of the Great Lakes. In the west, the C.C.F. picked up a few seats, but Hon. H. H. Stevens recorded his party's lone victory by (Continued on page 5)

THE FIRST 50 YEARS ARE THE TOUGHEST

(By J.O.L.) Fifty years ago yesterday, October 15th, 1885, James A. Livingston and his blushing blonde bride arrived in Grimsby from the 8th Line of the Township of Nottawasaga in the county of Simcoe, to take up residence. Mr. Livingston immediately took over the proprietorship of The Independent which had been established the previous July by a man named Meagher. All he got in chattels for his purchase money was a table and a couple of chairs besides the customary paste pot and awars. The baby sheet at that time was printed in Hamilton and possessed no printing plant of any kind.

SUBSTANTIAL AWARDS ATTRACT FINE TYPE OF CANDIDATE

New Motor Car, Trip To England And Cash Awards Are Now On Way To Being Won — Late Starters Can Win — Keen Interest Being Taken In Independent Subscription Campaign.

Up till now the activities of the candidates have been largely preparatory, but now the campaign begins in earnest. In a few short weeks those with the will to win will have become the major prize winners and other candidates will have been rewarded in proportion to their success as candidates. The first vote count showed a group of candidates who stood out a little in front as potential major prize winners. These were headed by Mrs. Lloyd Pettit, Grimsby; followed closely by Reginald Cloughley, Grimsby; J. D. Russ, North Grimsby and Charles C. Clattenburg, Grimsby. Following the first four were Frank Hurst, Earle Allen and Miss Mary Phipps, all of Grimsby and H. T. Haws of Grassie. All of these got off to a good start. Another group who have been a little slower in getting under way, but will have an equal chance of winning the major prizes are Arthur Henley, D. E. McGregor and Clarence Rushton, all of Grimsby and Harry J. Hildreth of Grimsby Beach. Miss Nellie Jacobs is an added starter and we have every reason to believe she will soon make her presence felt.

Keeping in mind that "the race is not always to the swift", only a speculator would even hazard a guess as to who might finish on top; someone whose name is not even mentioned yet as a candidate may come in now and forge to the front.

It is to be expected that the relative positions of candidates will change from day to day according to the amount of effort expended and as the fortunes of the candidates ebb and flow.

It is noted that every candidate on the list is of the type that does not readily take second place to anyone else. There is an air of determination about everyone which suggests that the prizes, magnificent as they are, are not as strong an impelling motive as the inherent human desire to better other candidates.

Every candidate entered has a circle of friends and acquaintances who will rally to his support. Co-operation of this kind is most useful and would have a decided advantage over one who must depend entirely on his or her own efforts. It would not be a good policy for any candidate to depend upon or expect too much or any co-operation but if it is given him, it no doubt would be very welcome.

During the next two weeks it is to be expected that the eventual winners will have shown themselves as such. Vote values are much higher from now until November 2nd than they will be thereafter. This means that the time to pile up a substantial advantage is during the next fortnight.

From the enquiries now coming into the Independent Office it is evident that interest is quite widespread. During every day and evening the campaign office is receiving phone calls and mail from all parts of the territory and far outlying districts. Candidates can be assured that their friends will keep an interested watch on their progress in the campaign and their good showing will mean more than the winning of the major prizes for it will enhance their prestige and the esteem of their fellow citizens in a manner that could not be accomplished under ordinary circumstances in many months or even years.

Where Is Your Favorite?

F. H. Avery To Carry Out Pledge To Roll Peanut

Fred H. Avery, Liberal M.P.E., for Lincoln, on Tuesday confirmed his intention to carry out a pledge to roll a peanut down Yonge Street, Toronto, if six Conservative members were returned in the Queen City. Monday afternoon the local member told the press at St. Catharines that he would definitely carry out his campaign promises of peanut rolling if his predictions were false. "You'll notice," the astute Mr. Avery added, "that I did not say when I would roll it, nor what part of Yonge street, nor how far, I intend consulting Toronto traffic records to determine the best time. It will probably be between two and three o'clock some morning."

Freak Accident Near Beamsville—Wheel Comes Off Wagon

A freak accident stove in the front door of C. Bell's home two miles west of Beamsville Friday afternoon and Mrs. Albert Hayward narrowly escaped serious injuries. The left rear wheel of a department of highways truck in charge of Hugh Hildreth, of Stony Creek, broke loose as the truck neared the Bell home. The truck dropped to the pavement while the wheel careened down the highway at a dizzy speed. As it neared the Bell home it struck the ground, placed the ditch, the veranda's steps and crashed through a screen door and the inner door. The screen door was ruined and the heavier door was torn away from the door jamb and the locks.

Mrs. Hayward, a neighbour of the Bells, was just crossing the lawn of the Bell home when the wheel made directly for her. Mrs. Hayward jumped and only by inches did she escape.

PHILLIPS' Milk of Magnesia

Jean Denby of humble origin, is introduced as a social equal of Miss Georgina La Fontaine, rather than as her secretary. She meets Piers Hennen, millionaire, who forces his attention on her. Lord Edwards proposes to Jean.

Jean leaves Miss La Fontaine to become a mannequin at the Salon Celeste.

"Piers' people died when he was young, didn't they?" Joan asked.

"Yes; old Hennen, you know, the one who founded the firm, was his uncle, and he brought Piers up. The old chap has brought him up very strict; he didn't spare the rod, I believe. Piers had a rotten time as a boy, but he had a great deal from his father when he was twenty-one and he has done much as he likes ever since. The old man, the uncle, died a few years ago, and there's hardly another member of the family living."

"It must be very bad for a man always to do as he likes!" Joan remarked.

"Yes," agreed Lord Edwards vaguely. But then he added: "Hennen is different though. There's nobody quite like him that I know. He works very hard, and ordinarily he doesn't fritter away his energy as so many of us do. He never bothers about the London season, or Cowes, or Scotland. He takes a few weeks off from his work and drives that car of his in some Alpine trial. He does a certain amount of flying, too, as I expect you know. That's how he lives; he concentrates on a few things and does them thoroughly. I saw him last night at the Embassy, with another man. The lady I was with wanted Piers to dance with her, I think; but he wasn't dancing with anyone. He told me that the world would be all right but for the women in it—I don't know why! I've never seen him so out of humor!"

Joan flushed, but she said nothing, and soon they talked of other things. But what Lord Edwards said led her to hope that perhaps Piers Hennen was really disheartened, and that she would hear no more of him.

Lord Edwards took her back to the Salon Celeste and there she spent another afternoon in the designing room, where she stood for two hours while an evening wrap of wine-colored velvet was modelled on her. Afterwards she went to see Miss La Fontaine in Eton Place. Her heart was warmed by the evident pleasure with which Miss La Fontaine heard of her success there. There was nothing small or mean about Georgie. "I'm glad you are happy at last!" she said, impulsively. "I want you to do well for yourself, Joan! You're such an independent creature that nothing one could do for you would ever please you as much as what you achieve by your own effort!"

Tears came into her proud old eyes as she added:

"You know, Joan dear, that if I had such an unreasonable number of nephews and nieces to think of, you would be the person to have everything I leave when I go!"

"What a brute I am not to stay here peacefully with you!" cried Joan, who was very much touched.

"Honestly, but for Piers Hennen I know I would be here with you still! It was he who really destroyed our peace of mind, Georgie!"

They parted affectionately, without Joan having mentioned that Hennen had not been so much daunted by Hooley Street as Georgina had feared. She did not want to raise any more hopes in her friend in that direction, as she herself was so resolute in her decision to dash them.

Home again in Hooley Street, perhaps because she was tired, everything seemed rather dreadful. Jimmy was coughing again and had been put to bed. Mr. Denby was out of temper and came in a little the worse for drink.

Maude had had a row with her young man, Al Brooks, the boxer; it seemed that she suspected him of taking out other girls besides herself, and though she thought nothing of making him jealous, it put her into a rage to be jealous herself.

Joan felt suddenly that she hated Hooley Street. She thought of what Lord Edwards or a man like Hennen could have done to alter it. But Lord Edwards, after all, would never dream of marrying her if he knew about Hooley Street, and Piers Hennen—!

She hoped and prayed that mere external things, like torn linoleum and dirt and broken stairs, would never get such a hold on her as to make her give herself into the power of Piers Hennen.

A WARNING

Next morning, however, life looked happier; there was hope in the future, for if she got on she would be able to make an improvement in their lives here with her own earnings.

At the Salon Celeste the other mannequins began to take an interest in her. At first they had left her alone, as they let the other girls who were supposed to be socially superior alone. But finding her simple and unaffected they became less diffident.

There was one by whom Joan was particularly impressed, a tall girl with jet black hair, and a skin of camelina whiteness. Her face was not happy-looking, but bitter, and her scornfully glowing eyes were ringed with shadow. She was listless and indifferent, and they used her for displaying the more sophisticated of the models. She smoked cigarette after cigarette when she was not working, and sometimes when she was.

"She smokes so beautifully!" said Madame Celine with a laugh, one day. The girl, whose name was Lydia Vaughn, spoke little to anybody, though the others seemed to like her quite well. Lazily, she drifted about the salon, her eyes burning with a certain hopeless ennui. A tip of a crimson lipstick carelessly applied. Joan noticed that Lydia Vaughn kept looking at her rather curiously on the day after she had lunched with Lord Edwards. Before Joan went out at mid-day the girl said to her:

See Her; "Karin Lund"

New York. — When Karin Lund, Washington, D.C., sailed for Sweden, a writer for a New York paper described reactions on shipboard to the disguised and for long invisible Greta Garbo.

"What they saw was a slim woman with her hands dug deep into the pockets of her trench coat, with an unbecoming visor hat pushed over her wind-swept mane of light brown hair, who encircled the boat deck with energetic strides. Her face, beautifully modeled and innocent of all make-up save what seemed to be the black artificial lashes which drooped from her lids, was not only thin but as pale as moonlight."

"She seemed tired and lonely and, with every good excuse, bored. Although her admirers saw her, she did not see them. Yet she knew they were there as surely as they knew that she was. She might ignore them, but she was their prisoner; the victim of her well-publicized reticence, the prey of her popularity."

"Napoleon as a captive had more freedom on the Bellerophon than Miss Garbo enjoyed as a conqueror upon the Kingsholm."

Your Handwriting Tells Your Real Character!

By GEOFFREY ST. CLAIR (Graphologist)
All Rights Reserved.

(Editor's Note: — Have YOU had YOUR character analysed from your handwriting? You would find it very helpful to you, and the author of this article makes an especial invitation to you, to take advantage of this opportunity. See the following article.)

So many of my readers have asked me for some hints on how to read character from handwriting that I purpose to accede to these requests, in some degree at least. Of course, the expression of a few symbols or characteristics in an article of this size cannot by any stretch of the imagination pretend to do more than merely skim the surface in a very sketchy manner. But at any rate these hints will prove interesting and may help some of you to a greater understanding of the value of handwriting as a chart of character.

There are some people whose writing slips over to the right in an alarming fashion. These are the people who are swayed by their feelings to a very marked degree. You will find them excitable, easily affected by things that are happening, apt to worry unduly about little things, and, generally, to be of a highly-strung, nervous temperament. When things get tense, in a word, during an emergency, for instance, these are the sort of people who get excited, flustered and ruffled. They do not know what to do, and even sometimes exhibit signs of extreme hysteria.

Now let us look for a moment at the other extreme. The vertical writer, who is influenced a good deal by her mind. Vertical (practically straight up and down) writers are invariably people who deliberate things before acting; there is no haste to "rush in where angels fear to tread." They judge deliberately, and they are inclined to study their own self-interest. What will they get out of this? Is a question that they invariably pose to themselves. They might have just as much emotional feeling as those writers who rant their writing far forward, but no difference is that they have more control over their feelings. They are mentally poised. They are rarely impetuous; they temper their enthusiasm with caution, and do not show their affection or ardour demonstratively.

These are the type of people who invariably make the best nurses. They have coolness even under the stress of sudden emergencies; they are balanced and self-possessed. They may be affectionate and kindly and sympathetic, but they are also practical and level-headed.

Let us now go to the backhand writers—those persons who deliberately write in opposition to all the canons of copybook writing. They are even more self-interested than the vertical writer. Self is the ruling factor Priest-in-Charge wanted for St. Mary's, Ash Vale, Catholic essential. Fast bowler preferred. — Church Times.

This being so, the provision, that a certain part of any such supplementary non-contractual remuneration should increase for the future the fixed contractual minimum, was from the point of view of the Buyer a really valuable set-off to the fact that, in order to get the Buyership at all, he had to accept terms of tenure that would make it very difficult for him to take off to some competitor of the Partnership the knowledge that he would never get unless we appointed him to this Buyership.—Partnership Gazette.

THEY'LL PINCH!

Granny's Shoes Don't Fit
Modern Feet.

London, Ont.—Only a modern Cinderella could slip her toes into the dainty shoes of her great-grandmother as displayed at the Western Fair. Some of the little shoes repose at home in old-fashioned cupboards but they won't go on the feet of the modern young woman, who wears smart brogues and doesn't mind admitting to a size six or thereabouts. (A shoe sizerman will tell you, by the way, that sizes now include length and width and are not to be compared with the old.)

Even the dresses pinched, some of them. The waistlines of the 40's, 50's and 60's could be spanned with two hands. But these were green-room secrets. When the small, but extremely interesting parade passed out of the Women's Institute at the Western Fair before going over to the grandstand for judging, a bit of long-ago Ontario came to life, and town and country people paused to look.

The prize-winning costume was worn by Miss Mary Garley of Thorndale, whose "ensemble" was complete in every detail. Miss Garley wore the tailored linen suit or "costume" which formed a part of the trousseau of Mrs. Fallows, mother of Howard Fallows, of West Nisour, as an English bride. Of natural-colored linen, still in beautiful condition, the skirt was worn over a crinoline, and a hand-made petticoat of fine lace-edged cotton also of the period. High shoes, with large buttons, and small pointed toe-caps completed the costume. These were of a somewhat later date than the gown.

The second prize went to Isabel Gregory of Coldstream, for a gown nearly a century old but in almost perfect condition. This was of orchid figured taffeta, elaborately trimmed with orchid buttons. The gown, once the property of Mrs. Del Hart, wife of a minister of the Church of Scotland in the Orkney Islands, was worn at a moderators' breakfast in Scotland. The original owner, if alive, would now be 107 years old.

Mrs. John Needham of Ilderton, carried off the third prize with her beautiful Paisley shawl, 150 years ago, sent to the Paisley family by Ontario from Paisley, Scotland. Under it was worn Mrs. Paisley's own gown, of black satin in basque design.

Possessive Mothers Severely Criticized

Majority of Delinquency Cases
Result of Mental Conflict,
Declares Clinic Head

Interesting views on "Juvenile Delinquency" were heard at the conference of the New Education Fellowship at St. Andrews recently.

Catherine McCallum, of Glasgow University, who is responsible for an educational clinic, said that the majority of delinquency cases brought before the clinic were the result of mental conflict.

She criticized mothers who attempted to keep attached to themselves boys aged from seven to ten whose natural attachment was towards the father.

Frequently the boy of ten to twelve transferred his interest outside the home to a Boys' Brigade officer or Scout leader, she declared.

Girls, also, were inclined to transfer their attachment, but when a girl of from 15 to 18 came under the influence of a strongly feminine woman a lot of harm could be done.

A. J. Lynch, chairman of the Tottenham Education Committee, speaking as a magistrate, said that in a case where seven boys were brought before the Bench on a charge of housebreaking, it was found that the parents spent evening after evening in entertainment outside the home, while the children were left for themselves.

Most of the cases of delinquency came from large families where people lived in restricted accommodation at high rents and on low incomes.

Of the 300 cases he dealt with last year not one of the boys or girls belonged to an institution or club.

F. H. Avery, M.L.A., addressing the victory parade, stated that he would work with Mr. Lockhart in any joint provincial-federal undertakings.

The official count of ballots will take place on Thursday at the office of Returning Officer S. J. Wilson, Beamsville. ## The Vote in Grimsby

The town of Grimsby voted Liberal, a conservative majority of 263 in 1930 being changed to a Liberal majority of 15. The result in North Grimsby township, however, gave the Conservative candidate a majority of 99 as compared with 273 in 1930.

There was an increase of 22 per cent. in the number of votes cast in the town of Grimsby as compared with the election of 1930. The increase in North Grimsby was 15 per cent.

About midnight a celebration was held on Main Street opposite the post office by supporters of the victor, a bonfire being lighted while the town bell was rung for about 15 minutes.

$400 In Jewelry Is Stolen At St. Catharines

Watches and rings to the approximate value of $400 were stolen early Thursday morning from the display window of Williams Jewelry Store, St. Paul street, near James, St. Catharines.

It was 5.20 o'clock when the robbery was discovered and police are of the opinion that it had only occurred a short time before that hour. The display window was smashed in the entrance near the door, a rock held in the hand apparently being the mode of breakage. A large section of plate glass was smashed and the robber then reached in and helped himself to some ten watches and 40 rings.

THEFT OF CLOTHING AT WAY'S STORE

suits of clothes, two overcoats, two pairs of shoes, 14 shirts, 24 pairs of socks, two windbreakers and an assortment of ties, sweaters and pants were packed into a couple of cartons and taken as far as New Toronto by the lads on bicycles, where the boys stopped for the night. Further investigation revealed that the two cycles were those taken from the Grimsby Beach school about a week ago and belonging to Charles Tweney, Jr. and Robt. McClelland. They have been returned to the owners. The boys are also faced with a charge of theft laid by the provincial police.

Hales and Oblinsky had been working at a local factory here.

Farmers who live not far distant from towns, find it profitable to sell by telephone direct to their customers in these centers.

Institutions, hotels, and the better grade food stores are good customers, especially of the poultry-farmer. Selling by telephone is profitable for both parties — the farmer gets the best prices and the client obtains choice products.

Besides putting you within voice range of prospective buyers, the telephone makes it possible for others to reach you quickly. Representatives of wholesale produce houses now do most of their buying by telephone. If you have no telephone on your farm, you often miss business opportunities. And, too, your family is deprived of many enjoyable social contacts.

Negro Holdup Man Near Stoney Creek Theft Frustrated

About 2.50 Tuesday morning, at the Windermere cut-off, where it links up with highway No. 20, Leslie Shipcote, Toronto, was walking along the highway, when a negro jumped out of some shrubbery, pointed a revolver at him and called on him to hand over his money. Shipcote replied by grabbing the arm of the negro and in the tussle the revolver went off, the bullet passing through the first finger of Shipcote's left hand. During the struggle that ensued the wounded man got possession of the revolver, the negro decamping among some bushes. Shipcote then continued his journey until he came to the intersection of highway 20 and 3, where a service station operative notified Constable Ed Jones, who, after hearing his story and seeing the extent of his injuries had him taken to the Hamilton City Hos-charming in a gown of plum-colored sheer velvet, and carried a shower bouquet of Tailsman roses and lily of the valley. Mrs. John Walsh, sister-in-law of the bride, played the wedding music.

DON COSSACKS CHORUS WIN HIGH ACCLAIM IN ST. CATHARINES

captivated their audience with the fineness of their singing and it was a thrilling experience for those who attended. The exultant fervor of their voices in Russian sacred music, the passionate longing expressed in their folk songs and the riotous accompaniment of shouts, whistling and frenzied Cossack dancing in their war songs combined to make it a memorable program. Their versatility was exemplified in the folk songs and examples of Russian church music which they sang with captivating national fervor.

Mr. E. T. Sandell and the Kiwanis Club of St. Catharines are to be congratulated for making it possible for the music lovers of St. Catharines and district to hear this outstanding and unusual choral organization.

BIG MAJORITY GIVEN LIBERALS

his election in East Kootenay, British Columbia.

Liberal Leader King, who will form the next government, won his Saskatchewan riding of Prince Albert. Premier Bennett was successful in his riding of West Calgary. J. S. Woodsworth, leader of the C.C.F., was returned to the house by the people of Winnipeg, North-Centre.

Of the 19 cabinet ministers who sought re-election, 12 were defeated and seven victorious. Those defeated were Hon. William Ernest Hon. R. B. Hanson, Hon. Samuel Gobeil, Hon. Onesime Gagnon, Hon. Lucien Gendron, Hon. Donald Sutherland, Hon. Wesley Gordon, Hon. Reg. Geary, Hon. R. J. Manion, Hon. Maurice Dupre, Hon. T. G. Murphy and Hon. Robert Weir.

An anti-government sweep started with the first returns in the Maritimes and jumped westward with the clock. The Liberals took every seat in Prince Edward Island. They took every seat in Nova Scotia. They took nine of New Brunswick's 19 seats. Only a shortage of 33 votes in the New Brunswick riding of Royal prevented the Liberals from taking every Maritime riding.

Quebec returned to almost a solid Liberal with 40 Liberal and four Independent Liberals to back them up. The Conservatives retained only five of the 24 seats they won in 1930 with one still doubtful.

Ontario did two things to Premier Bennett. It made his downfall doubly sure and gave him the nucleus of his house following. In 1930 he won 59 seats in Ontario. He won 26 with the Liberals jumping from 22 to 55.

CLOSE VOTE IN WENTWORTH
After almost twenty-four hours of confusion, it became fairly certain Tuesday that Wentworth had elected Frank E. Lennard Jr., Conservative candidate, as its member. According to official figures released, Mr. Lennard defeated Ellis Corman, his Liberal opponent, by a plurality of 146 votes. The county as a whole went predominantly Liberal, but Dundas gave Lennard 1,253 votes, compared with Corman's 696, while the city sections of the riding gave Lennard 4,406 votes and Corman 5,081. It will thus be seen that Corman has the tremendous task of overcoming a lead of about 2,000 by his strength in the county, and he got within 146 votes of doing it, and it is quite possible that a recheck may reverse the decision. William Pearce Reconstructionist, with roughly 6,000 votes, was third, and R. J. Hanna, C.C.F., last, with less than 3,000.

PEAR CROP LIGHT FRUIT IS IMPORTED

The pear crop of the Niagara fruit belt is finished, according to fruit-growers of the district. The crop was light in comparison with last year's and while the growers received $69 a ton from the canners the gross returns are below those of last year.

Enquiries from growers revealed that of the six large pear growers called the number of pounds of pears handled this year was a decrease of 143,000 pounds over last year. The total quantity of pears handled by these six growers, in various parts of the county, totalled 20,500 pounds this year, against 363,000 pounds last year.

Because of the shortage of pears, and to protect their export market in the Empire, the Canadian Canners are at present importing pears from the United States, pears for which the American grower is receiving $10 a ton. The importation of pears, coming at the end of the local crop, has meant continued employment to many persons.

ISN'T IT QUEER
Isn't it queer when you say to a toe Wiggle! Why straightway it wiggles you know!

Isn't it queer when you wish it, your feet onward will carry you, right down the street!

Isn't it queer when you open your hand, open it flies; can your palm understand?

Isn't it queer when you scarce have to think Ere things are obeying you quick as a wink!

Isn't it queer that by night and by day Your breath keeps on breathing, Your heart beats away, Isn't it queer?

We read columns I ween On wireless, fireless and flying machine

YESTERYEAR AT GRIMSBY PARK AND THE HISTORICAL ROMANCE OF GRIMSBY TOWNSHIP

(By Myrtle A. Bean)
Part I—1859-1874

Darkness was already thick among the trees and in every direction the woods was close except for a few fields around the primitive log dwelling and its tidy out buildings. The place looked more lonely in the gathering gloom until suddenly a bright candle gleamed in the small window.

"I can't see what's keeping Pa so long down at Grimsby. He started off long before noon with that grain for the mill," said Mrs. O'Neil, as her loving anxious hands snuffed, lit and placed the candle to light up the narrow thread of road that led into the mysterious depths of the woods.

Carrie smiled reassuringly. "He's just been talking too much at the mill. You know how they do when the men all get together waiting for the grain to be ground." She industriously knicked the sort spongey mass of dough in the big wooden bread box on the bench with her young capable hands.

"Yes, I suppose," she said, "in the road must be pretty bad after the storm last night and I think he won't stay as late as this without good reason — God keep him safe!" she breathed.

"Oh, he's an expert," she said, sure he is. "I won't if he took the wheat to Dent's or Gurney's," she ventured.

"Thinking about Gurney's new man from St. Catharines who brought you home from singing school last week?" said her mother, resolutely putting away her own nerve fears, "you better keep on with George Morton. We know him and his folks."

Carrie laughed, the naturally high color deepening on her cheeks. How much she looked like her mother with the same dark flashing eyes, black shining hair and broad low brow.

"There's nothing the matter with George, Mother, but the singing teacher taught us a duet, that's all. I wish we could go oftener to the church at Grimsby instead of always only to 13 schoolhouse."

"But child, the Methodists can have their service only in the evening in the Presbyterian Church and we can't be coming back so late, you know that."

"Oh, I know, but all the same it would be nice. I like a church."

"Well, we're hoping we will soon be getting a church of our own; then we can go down in the morning every week. Open the door, dear, Nathan's coming with the milk," but almost before the boy had put down the two brimming pails his mother said "Son, take the dog and go to the cross-roads to see if you can see your father, and if you don't meet him you better go on to Ralph Walker's for their horse."

"Yes, Ma, I was thinking he better soon be coming. May I have a piece of bread first though; my stomach's empty," he said coaxingly.

Mrs. O'Neil hastily cut off a thick slab to suit her young twelve-year-old, then liberally spread it with wild honey that came from a hive he had found just a few days before. "There now hurry on" and she gave him an anxious little push to the door, "I'm sure someone will go with you from there if it is necessary."

Nathan eating his bread, ran out into the gloom, whistled to Roger, the big sheep dog who needed no second call, and together they disappeared immediately down the road.

Inside Mother and daughter worked on busily. The cosy hearth, reflecting a cheerful glow a darkness settled around the log house, sent forth broad lights and shadows on the walls and rafters where fishing rods, guns and paddles hung artistically grouped. The room appeared spacious even though it was used for every purpose except sleeping. It also boasted a well-scrubbed wide-planked wooden floor which was brightened with carefully sewed-together rag mats on the window sill.

Two gaily blooming pink geraniums had grown from tiny slips taken from the wonderful plant in Mrs. Morton's parlor at Grimsby. From the centre of the fireplace hung the spit on which a juicy roast of meat was slowly revolving until cooked to a delicious sizzling brown ready for immediate serving when the man of the house should return.

"I hear them coming Mother; somebody anyway," said Carrie running to the door.

GRIMSBY VILLAGE IN 1859— THE TIME OUR STORY BEGINS

Seventy-six years ago all the property from Main St. to the lake was a solid mass of woods. The "Town Hall" was a frame building situated where the Public Library now is, and was virtually in the woods.

In 1852 the Great Western Railway Co. purchased two acres of land from the Anglican Church for the Grimsby station and when the railway first went through near the village a few years later only a foot path, now Depot St., connected the stage trail with the railway station.

In the very early days Ralph Walker, pioneer, whose farm was on the mountain built the Randall House.

This was the Exchange Hotel where the stage coach stopped to change horses. Old residents say the toll gate stood opposite it.

The main part of the village was situated, as late as 1840 in the west end of the town adjoining the Church of England. Later the business section moved down to Fitch's Corners around Gilson and Main Sts. The Post Office being situated at Fitch's house in a room built on the side of the residence which can still be seen. After the railway and station arrived the forest receded farther away from the Main Street of the village and at the time our story opens the business section was gradually moving down into the valley where it now stands.

There were but two churches in 1859, the Anglican Church first built of logs in 1794, replaced by a frame building in 1804 to the present stone church, erected in 1823. Rev. Francis J. Lundy was the rector in 1859.

The Presbyterian brick church was built in 1833 and harbored three congregations for many years; the Presbyterians holding their Sabbath service in the morning, the Baptists in the afternoon and the Methodists in the evening. In 1859 the Presbyterian minister was Rev. John Murray. The Methodists had Rev. Michael Fawcett and the Baptists were frequently supplied by the Beamsville church.

The Bible Hall on Adelaide St. was used for a Union Sunday School until other churches were built when it was presented to the Baptists. This hall was built in 1847 for that purpose by Charles E. Woolverton, a staunch Baptist.

WHAT IS A CAT?

What is a cat in the daytime?
A sleeping ball of fur,
A yawn, a stretch, a sudden sniff,
A bowl of milk, a purr.

What is a cat at night-time?
A creature of surprise,
A ghost, an unembodied voice,
Two phosphorescent eyes.

What is a cat whom no one loves?
A cold and frightened stare,
A lean and hunted hungry thing,
With rough and matted hair.

What is the cat which you have made?
You make a cat, you know,
Whenever you feed a homeless one
Or leave it in the snow.

National Cheese Week, Oct. 28 Nov 2

Although Canadian cheddar cheese is equalled by few and surpassed by none of the 250 different kinds of cheese manufactured throughout the world, the Canadian people eat less cheese than most of the other great nations. For this reason, the Canadian cheese industry in 1934 promoted "National Cheese Week" in an attempt to call attention to the advantages of cheese as a food product, and Canadian at that, worthy of more general use. As a result of these efforts, the consumption of Canadian cheese in Canada increased by almost half a pound per head of population during the year, and heightened by this advance, the Canadian cheese industry has called the 1935 National Cheese Week for October 28th to November 2nd.

North America is not famous for its cheese-eating propensity. Until the half-pound advance last year Canada's per capita consumption of cheese was less than four pounds a year. The United States was slightly better with four and a half pounds. Today Canada and the United States are about equal in cheese consumption which looks small in comparison with 16 pounds per capita in Switzerland; ten pounds in France, and for the small quantity of cheese eaten in the Dominion is that it is generally served as plain cheese at the end of a substantial meal and not as the principal ingredient of an enticing main dish followed by a light dessert. Cheese is a food in itself and it can be used in cooking in many different ways. It is one of the best muscle builders for older boys and girls, as well as for adults, but when served in crude bulk it cannot be said to be universally appetizing. Cheese does not lose its flavor or nutritive value in cooking, but it should be remembered that when cheese is subjected to high temperatures it is harder to digest. Eaten according to modern recipes, there can be no cause under ordinary circumstances for any digestive disturbance.

Missionaries Stick To Ethiopian Posts

Toronto. — Although they are in the danger zone, a number of Canadians are sticking to their posts as missionaries.

Dr. E. Ralph Hooper, with Mrs. Hooper and their daughter Helen, are still within five miles of Addis Ababa and are sticking to their posts.

John Trewin and Dr. and Mrs. Percy Roberts are stationed at Sodda, an hour and a half by plane and two weeks by foot from Addis Ababa. Mrs. Anne Forbes of Toronto said today she had heard from Mr. Trewin recently. He was happy and content to stay where he was she said.

Thomas Devers, and his fiancée, Miss G. Pogue, are stationed near Addis Ababa. Dr. and Mrs. T. A. Lambie and Dr. C. P. Rolfe, who went in to the interior recently are now back at Addis Ababa.

Lottie Blair, of Guelph is the only missionary who has had to return because of her health. Authorities of the Sudan Interior Mission said that none has thought of leaving on account of the impending war.

Putting An Idea Into Action

(Letter in Toronto Star)
To the Editor of The Star. Sir: Briefly, the scene started in a city office where the six male members were in heated discussion over the actions of Italy. Three favored Britain's attitude in supporting the League, two were on the fence while one decidedly favored Italy. "Let them take land, if they want it," said number six. "They've got to expand, and there is lots of room in Africa."

After the discussion had ceased the first three got together, with the result that they arranged for two husky friends to call on Italy's supporter. While the two officers remained outside in case of trouble, the two huskies called on Mr. B. They gained admittance to his home and straightway stated "that as he had no family and had a large house, they required it for themselves. Their families were large, very large, so they needed a larger house. He could remain in it if he wanted but they would move in at the end of the month."

There was a lively word scene inside, with threats on both sides. And when the police were going to be called the two men made an exit. As the front door was opened there were the two officers and the joke was soon out. Number six had been put in the position of Ethiopia and had appeared for help against the aggressor and he had changed his mind, and he was sport enough to admit it.

Speed Blamed For Death Toll

"The national safety council of the United States has recently had something to say about the death tolls on American highways that is of definite interest to us in Canada, since similar conditions largely apply here," writes the Montreal Star. The Council finds that the most disheartening factor of the present situation is that while all other types of accidental deaths have decreased, those caused by motor vehicles have steadily increased year after year. In 1932 the rate was 4.4 per 100,000 population; in 1933 it had increased to 17.16 per cent; and last year it mounted to the alarming figure of 28.5. There are almost one hundred deaths every day throughout the United States on the highways alone due to automobile accidents. In 1932, 25,000 people were killed; 95,400 injured, and 105,000 disabled, with an economic loss, including property damage, of $1,500,000,000.

The National Council, answering the question, what are the underlying causes of the deaths, declares that the blame in the great majority of cases rests with the driver, whose worst ally is speed. In nine out of ten mishaps chargeable to drivers, the cause was too great speed, and driving too fast was the dominating factor in the greater seriousness of accidents recorded in 1934. The greater speed and horsepower of modern cars has contributed materially to the preponderance of serious smash-ups.

The council recognizes that the problem has become too big and too serious to be handled with any hope of success in a haphazard manner, or patchily, but that the only way to bring down the death-toll is by the united efforts and the co-operation of all parties concerned, — legislators, automobile manufacturers, motor vehicle administrators, highway engineers, traffic police, safety and school authorities — and the general public.

The situation in this Dominion is similar. There is no lack of any approach to unity of action or a universal code. Yet that could easily be brought about through an international conference and agreement. And it is becoming a vital necessity here, as in the States, to curb the steadily mounting percentage of fatalities through motor vehicle accidents.

June Holds Its Place

When a young Canadian couple decides to set up housekeeping and tell anew the celebrated theory that two can live as cheaply as one the chance are considerably better than one in twelve that they will select a date in June for their marriage.

In all Canada last year 72,674 marriages were reported, and June, with 2,277 of them, led all the rest by a handsome margin. October, ranked surprisingly, was in second place, with 8,082; September third with 7,252 and November fourth with 7,020. August was fifth and July no better than sixth.

March was the month least favored, with only 3,211 marriages—little more than a third of September total—but January and February were not much better. Weddings were more numerous in December than in April and May. But June, whether by tradition or through some more profound veil or, is so outstanding a favorite that little surmise is not likely to be threatened.

Teaching Pupils To Avoid Slang

Teachers in London Ontario, schools are undertaking the task of educating the pupils to improve their voices and avoid the use of slang, observes the Sarnia Canadian Observer. It is an excellent mission that ought to repay in cultural achievement the time and energy spent on it.

Canadians as a class, are backward in voice training. As a general thing, voices in this country are high-pitched and harsh; we have the nasal twang to quite a degree and away from home, as in Europe, we are classed as Yankies.

A large percentage of the population will be surprised and offended at such accusations. They have never thought of taking stock of their own voices. If they will do that, they will find that there is much room for improvement.

For the children at school, most teachers in the primary grades consider that they have enough to look after when they conform to the official curriculum. However, they have the best opportunity to influence their pupils to cultivate softer voices and to avoid the use of slang. The admonitions of the teacher usually make a permanent impression. It ought to be checked up on the use of slang, yet who can blame the youngsters, when so many adults are addicted to that practice?

Hit With A Poker

Walter Harris, 54, a bailiff's officer in Toronto, went to a house to seize a washing machine on which payments had not been kept up. The man of the house resented the visit from the officer, and also resented the purpose of the visit. He gave vent to his resentment by hitting him on the head with a poker and now faces a charge in court.

It is not likely that the bailiff's officer or the bailiff himself in similar circumstances would receive much sympathy. It would cause no surprise to find that a number of people thought the man in the house did about the right thing. That feeling has shown itself a number of times, not only in cities but in bailiff's sales on farms in this country and across the line.

Plain fact is that the bailiff or any man he sends is merely doing what the duties and functions of his office call for. He is merely the visible part of the process of law, and for that reason he is the one target which presents itself when some individual wants to register protest. In the case of the washing machine the person who took action in the first place would be the man who sold the machine and was not getting his payments. Or it might have been some creditor who had seized the machine for non-payment of other debts. But none of those people get hit on the head with a poker. Such treatment is reserved for the bailiff or his agent. — Stratford Beacon-Herald.

Tax Collections

Minister of National Revenues Reports Large Increases

Ottawa.—Income tax collections during the six months of the fiscal year ended September 30 showed increases over the corresponding period last year, according to a statement issued recently by Hon. J. Earl Lawson, Minister of National Revenues.

Net receipts in the six month period totalled $63,767,436, a net increase of $16,465,978 in comparison with last year.

Toronto and Montreal districts again registered the largest gains. The former with a total income tax revenue of $20,339,481 showed an increase of $5,881,387, and the latter with a revenue of $19,176,707, an increase of $4,673,852.

Other districts showing gains were: London, $6,175,801, increase $2,116,420; Hamilton, $4,603,054, increase $1,529,503; Vancouver, $3,966,483, increase $863,642; Ottawa, $3,522,509, increase $464,644; Winnipeg, $1,593,023, increase $359,215; Calgary, $883,210, increase $230,389.

Income tax revenue received in September amounted to $2,479,024, an increase of $381,111 compared with September 1934.

In the 19 collection districts, two, Quebec and Regina, showed declines. Quebec collections were off $11,490 at $572,881, and Regina's down $3,787 at $151,040.

Other increases were: Charlottetown, $49,551; Halifax, $172,470; Saint John, $126,550; Kingston, Ont., $31,110; Belleville, Ont., $33,553; Fort William, Ont., $30,404; Saskatoon, $13,034; Edmonton, $18,503; Y. n., $623.

Elmira's Name

"How did Elmira come to be named 'Elmira'?" asks the Elmira Signal. The origin of the name "Elmira" is somewhat legendary. In a book of the "Historical Society" it is told. Surprising as it might seem now, the people were mostly English in the early days about Elmira. A certain type of English people are prone to drop the pronunciation of the letter "h" in words. For example, they would say "eel for heel and 'ome for home. In these early days an Englishman and his wife, Mira, were driving along with an ox-team on a heavy road where Elmira now stands. When his oxen and cart mired in the mud, helplessly stuck, he called to his wife: "ell, Mira, let's go 'ome!" By dropping an "l" and writing a small "m" we have the name Elmira."

"The Englishman is profoundly or even subconsciously patriotic; he is superficially rather superficial." — G. K. Chesterton.

"Through all the changing ages known to history and science the essential elements of life have not changed." — Harold Bell Wright.

SPORT HOT SHOTS

By KEN EDWARDS

DID YOU KNOW that Andy Blair of the Toronto Maple Leafs is the only player in the National Hockey League who sports a moustache? Andy has a very strong crowd appeal, this is readily realized when one sees his whirling rushes and inimitable stick handling.

Blair was born in Winnipeg in 1908 and tips the scales at 185 pounds. He is a graduate of the University of Manitoba where he was a topnotcher in many sports.

Sport seems to be his great centre man's hobby. At one time Andy was a star baseball pitcher, rugby halfback, sprinter and golfer. He has been with Toronto for some time now, however, there was talk of a trade to the Rangers, but lets hope not.

Election Costs

Public Treasury to be Drained Of Four Millions For Voting

Ottawa.—This general election cost the public treasury of Canada four million dollars at least, which is about double the expenditure of 1930. The outlay of the political parties cannot be estimated completely, but it was stated that, five years ago, it cost the major ones four millions. It is likely increased in view of the fact that a new party sought a place in the sun.

The main contribution to the increased cost to the public arises from the new method of preparing lists. The revision was in progress from last October till June. All are printed where, previously, typewriting sufficed. The idea was to have closed lists making possible an election with four weeks' notice but this year, for various reasons, the election period, in place of being abbreviated, has actually been lengthened. The longer it lasts the greater the outlay. The cost of preparing and printing the lists and the supervisory service by the franchise commissioner was two million dollars.

Another two million, at least, was required for the election itself — the pay of 243 returning officers, poll clerks, rent of polling places and other costs. Because there was over 800,000 new voters, the number of polls were increased from 28,000 to 33,350. Each poll cost about $40.

Returning officers received a minimum of $500 and from this the scales ran up to about $1,200 depending on the size of the constituency and the number of polls. The largest voting strength was Ottawa West, with 55,727 voters.

It has been figured out that the cost of each vote polled this year, including the public expense and that of the parties, averaged $1.60.

BUSINESS TREND MUCH IMPROVED

Reports From Many Sources Reveal Upward Movement

Toronto.—Customs and excise collections in September heavier for that month since 1929 and 12 per cent above September, 1934, total. Kitchener, Ont.—Building permits in Kitchener for first nine months of this year greater by 80 per cent than total for like period of 1934.

Sydney, N.S.—Dominion Steel and Coal Corporation's steel plant has present working force of 3,100 men, largest since 1929.

St. Thomas, Ont.—Hundred shopmen in employ of Pere Marquette railway here returned to work this week for an indefinite period.

Victoria.—British Columbia's industrial production this year will exceed that of 1934 by eight to 10 per cent, trade indices currently indicate.

Halifax.—Apple shipments through port of Halifax in September 139,401 barrels compared with 90,355 in same month last year; bulk of the shipments going to England.

St. Catharines, Ont.—Customs returns at this port for September $66,956 greater than for the same month of last year, increase of 78 per cent.

North Sydney, N.S.—Construction of $50,000 cold storage plant for fish and other commodities to be started here next week.

Montreal.—Production of newsprint in Canada in August, greatest on record for that month with shipments reaching new high for any corresponding month.

3-1 Chance of War According To Lloyd's

London.—The chances are three to one that there will be war in Europe before the end of the year, according to the men who figure risks for Lloyd's.

War risk insurance, on the basis of any two European nations becoming involved in conflict, is being offered on the basis of a 75 per cent premium. In other words, the man who wants to protect himself against war must pay a premium three-quarters of the full amount he would receive if war came.

Lloyd's also is insuring the incomes of businessmen, who are servants, against the possibilities that they will be called to the colors. The premiums on such insurance range from five per cent to 10 per cent of the face value of the policies, according to the age and nationality of those seeking insurance. In other words, the chances against businessmen in Europe being drafted range from 5 to 1 to 20 to 1.

THE BOY GROWS UP!

Our home is all a-bustle,
Mother has to hustle, Though sister needs her help she
has to wait;
There's a suit in need of pressing,
And a call for help in dressing.
For Sonny has grown up and has
a date.
We remember once when Sonny
As a human was quite funny,
For his clothes were seldom neat or clean or straight;
Now he gets his whitest collar
And he raises such a holler
If his things are not just right; he has a date.
His manners grow assuming
And his hair gets much of grooming.
Now he walks with carriage
sophisticate;
We have lost the little fellow
With his rush and squeal and bellow—
For Sonny's now a man; he has
a date.

The big grandfather clock that wonderment to her and she used to spend a long time gazing at it. One day her aunt entered the hall and saw the child staring at the clock.

Aunt—Is the clock going, Betty?
Betty—No, Auntie. It's just standing still and wagging its tail.

the pupils were studying physiol-

them to state the number of bones in the body, to name the various organs and state the special work of each, at last asked:

Teacher—Now who can tell me
what happens in the stomach?
This had the class thinking for a moment. Then up went Norman's hand eagerly, very pleased that he knew the answer:

Teacher—All right, Norman, tell us what takes place in the stomach.
Norman—Stomach ache!

LEISURE: Leisure is time not devoted to labor on the part of one who has work. One who does not have work can have no leisure. He is idle;
idleness is not leisure.

The two words are in no degree synonymous. Idleness is the hardest kind of work. Millions will testify to that fact—unproductive work that is destructive to morale.

Leisure may be a blessing or a curse—idleness is generally a curse.

BEWARE THE COW

Warns Editor After Reviewing Magistrate's Judgment
On Case

A new legal status has been given to that passive and productive animal, the cow. It is no longer necessary for this domestic quadruped to watch her step like the common herd.

A magistrate at Truro Nova Scotia has delivered a judgment regarding the circumstances immediately antecedent to the untimely decease of a wandering bovine, upon which judgment the late Mr. Solomon could scarcely have improved. The cow was in the road. It was contacted (nice new expression invented by bustling salesmen).

The magistrate expressed himself
as follows: "A man who does not stop his car when a herd of cattle is on the road is a menace and a fool."

He said also that no driver can determine what a cow is going to do and that the onus is therefore upon the driver. Nothing could be more true than the fact set forth in His Worship's final sentence.

Nobody knows what a cow is going to do; not even the cow. The motorist finds himself upon the horns of a dilemma. He wishes to pass the cow but he has no means of knowing just where the cow will be when he arrives. He has little stomach for it, whereas the cow has four.

The driver has no preconceived antipathy toward the cow, indeed the milk of kindness may be in him. His ordinary sentiment in the matter of cows is one of good will and esteem.
He has no desire to injure either hair or hide of the ruminant ruminating
in the highway, but the cow, preoccupled with gustatory problems peculiar to its field of activity, has a tendency to graze.

The cow, in moment of abstraction
common to all deliberative mammals, college professors, etc., is subject to unpremeditated and therefore unforeseeable vagaries of locomotion. These are distinctly embarrassing to the automobile driver, whose only safe conduct, particularly in view of this recent judgment, is to go back a few miles and detour.

It is difficult in the light of personal experience to completely stifle all sense of sympathy for the Truro offender who is thus left to chew upon the end of his melancholy reflections.
But there is a point of great importance involved. A way out has been found for the ordinary human biped, who has no right of way. All that he has to do now is to look like a cow.

LEARN TO SKI!

In a neatly bound, handy-sized book
"Learn to Ski" (Macmillan's Toronto)
Hermann Baatzmann has given ski-enthusiasts the volume they have been looking for.

Mr. Baatzmann's method is the one that is now largely used in Europe,
and has as its foundation the idea
that everybody can, and should ski.
This theory of skiing is the ultimate outcome of years of experience gained by our greatest ski expert. These pioneers in the realms of skiing have paved the way for later generations of skiers who may now enjoy the advantages without the troubles experienced in breaking new ground. Mr.
Baatzmann has set forth the lessons
in simple, understandable language which is made yet more obvious by the many illustrations interspersed throughout the pages.

The author was born in Berlin, Germany, educated at the German Academy of Sports and Body Culture and is an excellent skier himself. He has lived for some years in Canada and has done much to further the interest of Canadians in this winter sport.

for the relief of headaches; or the pains of rheumatism, neuritis or thinks about it—in comparison

We say this because, before the discovery of "Aspirin," most so-called "pain" remedies were advised against by physicians as being harmful to the stomach; or, often, for other reasons. And the discovery of "Aspirin" largely changed medical

Countless thousands of people who have taken "Aspirin" have in-

proved that the medical findings
about its safety were correct.

Remember this: "Aspirin" is nual Timiskaming-Cochrane district Scout Jamboree leaders and Scouts

were present from Kapuskasing,
Kirkland Lake, Cochrane, Iroquois Falls and South Porcupine. The Scouts camped Friday night and conducted activities all day Saturday, concluding with a big programme in the skating rink in the evening. A Scouts' own church service was held on Sunday. The trophy for proficiency in scout-craft was won by the Kirkland Lake Scouts.

125 couples attended a dance held under the auspices of the 1st Sudbury Group. The hall was decorated in green and gold, the Scout colours.

American Boy Scout visitors to Ontario this summer included a party of 53 from Norwalk, Conn.,
who were shown over the Welland canal district, and joined in an international Scout camp fire at the Niagara Falls district camp. The American lads took home with them
a Union Jack and the Niagara Falls Scouts an American flag, the gift of the American Vice Consul, Elton Hoyt.

"The Biggest Thrill of the Fair" was the enterprising announcement of the Boy Scouts of Coldwater, Ont., regarding their "Boy Scout Museum," at the local fall exhibition. The 5 cent admission fee produced $14 for the troop funds. The museum included Indian and pioneer relics, natural history freaks, tropical fish and other interesting objects.

The Galt Council of the Knights of Columbus were hosts to 60 boys of St. Patrick's Scout Troop of Galt, St. Clement's Troop of Preston and the 1st Hespeler Troop at a corn roast on a farm some distance from the city. During the evening three Scouts who had passed Separate School entrance examinations with highest marks were presented with $10.00 scholarships.

The programme included a five-minute "amateur hour," coronet solos,
Scout songs, and an address by A.
D. C. Leonard Wheeler of Galt.

Good first aid work was done by a Salvation Army Scout when a cyclist, in a dense fog, ran into the rear of a car and suffered a sprained wrist and a bad cut on the forehead. The Scout, who declined to identify himself further than to say he was a member of the Cedarvale
S. A. Scout Troop, and had learned his first aid under Brigadier Rufus Spencer of Salvation Army Territorial Headquarters, Toronto, secured ice from a nearby farm to make a compress for the sprain, and used his tie in improvising an effective head bandage. The incident was reported by the American motorist concerned, who was greatly impressed by the lad's efficiency.

Some 400 people attended a unique evening social held on the lawn of "Stop 19 School," under the auspices of the Welland Scout Groups.
The grounds were brilliant with many coloured lamps loaned by the Hydro Commission, and benches provided by Church of the Open Door were arranged in a large semi-circle. The programme began with a series of wrestling bouts, and these were followed by a Scout camp fire programme which included the investment of four Cubs and a Scout. Addresses were made by Chairman
John Warren of the Board of School Trustees and Reeve Frank H. Clarke
of Thorold Township. The evening was declared the most successful
ever held at Stop 19.

1935 Not So Wet

Rainfall Not Much Greater
Than Average for Past
Twenty Years

While the year 1935 to date has been termed "wet" by farmers and others, the rainfall since the first of the year has not been much greater than the average rainfall for twenty years back according to figures in the records kept by official weather observer, Alex. Abraham.

Since January 1 of this year a total of 17.29 inches of rain has fallen in Stratford an average of 2.16 inches for each of eight months which have already passed. That total of course is not yet equal to the 1934 mark of 23.19 inches of rain but with four more months to go before the records officially close for the year, and less than six inches of rain needed to equal last year's mark, the chances are that rainfall for 1935 will pass the mark of last year which was a comparatively dry year.

Since 1915, the date from which records are available, the greatest amount of rain to fall in Stratford
in one year fell in 1932 when 36.63
inches was recorded. The lowest figure since 1915 was last year's mark of 23.19 inches.

Stratford's average rainfall for the past 21 years, inclusive of 1935

and 1915, is 28.74 inches.

May Rainfall Heaviest

The month of May has been the month in which the greatest amount of rain has fallen. Other months have been wet enough but the highest rainfall figure for any one month was in May 1916 when 7.95 inches of rain fell. In May 1924, 6.05 inches of rain was recorded and the same month in other years has always shown a tendency to be wetter than other months of the year.

In the past 20 years rainfall has been well above the average of 28-74 inches. In 13 of the 20 years the rainfall has averaged over three inches above the 20-year average mark.

For six years the records show rainfall averaging four inches below
the 20-year average mark and only one year has the precipitation been on par with the average.

The following are the figures indicating rainfall for each year, beginning with 1914 figure: 23.19; 24.89; 35.34; 33.75; 24.5; 25.32; 31.54;
29.35; 33.06; 27.21; 29.32; 36.63;
33.23; 30.58; 28.35; 30.1; 31.28; 28.88;
30.11. Figures for 1915 are available for only the five months from August to December, when Mr. Abraham took over the duties as weather observer and recorder.

HIGH DESTINY FOR A TINY SEED

THAT FELL ON A COWICHAN HILLSIDE

From the Victoria Times

They took two trees of the hillside of Cowichan Lake the other day and brought them down to the water's edge and shaped them to make masts for King George's yacht. They were Douglas fir, straight as an arrow for more than a hundred feet, clean and limbless most of their length, the kind of timber that only the Pacific Coast can grow.

When the King is steering his own yacht, with a wet sail and following wind, it should please him to look up at his tall masts and realize how far they have traveled—what an immense variety of timber the Empire produces. Perhaps two centuries ago, just about this time of year, the cones
on some great Douglas fir blew down
the mountainside about Cowichan Lake. Of every thousand seeds, the experts tell us, only one on the average grew into a tiny seedling, and of these seedlings, possibly one in ten survived the first year. The tall masts now on their way to England

were two of the lucky ones.

As the forest grew, the seedlings surged up, a thousand or so to the acre, as thick as hair on a dog's back—little Christmas trees such as you see along the Island Highway today, each trying to grow higher than its neighbors, fighting for the precious sunlight. The fight was fierce and relentless and went on for half a century. By the time the two trees that were to make kingmasts had grown 50 feet in height and a foot or so through the butt,
most of their neighbors had died,
starved for lack of light in this upward surge toward the sun. Only the strongest could survive, only one (free from ten thousand of the seeds that fell) on the hillside.

For another century, the survivors grew slowly, while the wind fell to the ground to sink back into the earth and enrich it. Before this men came to the island the King's masts were sizeable trees and they could

of thickness... year, until the were mature and ready for reaping—ready to carry great white wings of canvas on a royal vessel at the other side of the world.

A high destiny, this for a tiny seed that fell upon a mountainside a couple of centuries ago.

The ex-members of the Canadian Corps Cyclist Battalion will hold their annual Armistice Dinner and Re-union in London, Ontario, on Saturday, Nov. 9th. Arrangements are being made for a large gathering and many of the old "pedalpushers" have already made plans to attend. All former C.E.T. Cyclists who are interested should write to Sam Mercer, Secretary of the Canadian Corps Cyclist Battalion Association, Registry Building, 90 Albert St., Toronto.

Further information regarding details of the dinner will be published in the near future. Watch for it in this paper.

A Cow Is Just a Cow

Does the average person who attends a fall fair miss the point? The Stratford fair is through for another year and while it was going on there was plenty of opportunity to get a fair enough idea of what the people went to see. Of course, they go through what are termed the main buildings, and that is fine. The crowd flocks to the midway and there it seems to stick. It wants amusement, and a chance to play games where it is known in advance that the man behind the counter is always winning no matter what happens to his customers. A loser may feel the game is not fair, but he knows in advance
he is trying wits with a sharper man. But there they flock.

On several occasions there was opportunity to go through the sheds
where there were housed hogs, sheep, beef and dairy cattle, and not at any time was it noticed there was anything like a crowd. Just a few interested people looking around. It may have been that the people who went to the stock sheds were the ones who should have gone, but their number was always small compared with the crowds elsewhere.

And yet back in those sheds were the sources of our bacon and ham, our lard, sausage and spare ribs; the supply of milk was represented there,
and our butter, cheese and our supply of meat, here were animals there for which $700 or $800 had been paid;
there were others which were not for sale on account of their worth in a herd. In the sheds was the basis of the good breeding which is making livestock an industry instead of a sideline.

Too average person might say he or she did not know anything about such things and therefore would not be interested. A pig is just a pig, and a cow just a cow. Truth is there are people there nearly all the time, herdsmen, breeders and farmer-exhibitors, and they would be only too pleased to tell the inquiring person a good deal that is tremendously interesting. If one wants to know if the up-and-coming young farmer of today understands scientific agriculture and stock just go and ask him.
He has a great deal to impart. There is much to be learned at the fall fair
